Notes:

i. The College uses a system of fines/tariffs to enforce and to promote good sense and behaviour, and respect for staff and the College. The fines are discretionary and subject to periodic review by the Proctor's Advisory Committee. They are collected through the Finance Office and maintained in a student hardship fund.

ii. If an individual student and/or a College Society have infringed the College Rules and Regulations, their best response is always to admit the offence, apologise, and seek to put right the fault; this may include clearing up. The College Proctor will acknowledge the admission of responsibility and cooperation with the College staff by reducing the fines involved and/or ensuring that the minimum fine is imposed. The Proctor will also make clear to the student(s) in question that they have the right to appeal against a disciplinary fine, and/or be considered for a reduced fine if they are experiencing financial hardship; in both instances they should communicate this to their Tutor.

iii. The Proctor reserves the right to combine and compound the set fines either in exceptional circumstances or in the following cases: (1) if the individual(s) involved have been registered as repeat offender(s); (2) if one incident includes several of the above elements, e.g. vomiting in Hall and then refusing to clear it up; (3) if the individual(s) involved have been uncooperative with College Staff; (4) if the incident took place in another College, that College's Rules and Regulations may also apply.

iv. In addition to any specific fine imposed, the individual(s) fined undertake to pay the full replacement/repair costs of College equipment destroyed/damaged during an incident. These include the costs of resetting fire alarm, heat and smoke-detecting equipment and call out fees. Invoices and estimates of repair will be obtained by relevant Head of Department, and are not negotiable. They will include remuneration for staff time spent on the repairs.
